Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

I HAVE a communication from the Arkansas Road District Protective association asking that all landowners in the old road improvement districts of Hempstead county who are willing to devote their spare time to the campaign to keep the district tax from coming back on the land send their names to E. E. Mitchell, chairman, at Morrilton, Ark., or E. W. Hogan, at Russellville.

Repeal Effective Tuesday; Dr. Doran Heads Liquor Code

Permits Are Issued to Importers—Foreign Liquor Already at Sea

QUITS GOVERNMENT

Doran Ends 26 Years of Service, Joining Distillers

WASHINGTON — (P)—Representatives of domestic distillers Monday said that Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of industrial alcohol during the prohibition era,

Roosevelt Home Again
WASHINGTON—(P)—President Roosevelt returned to Washington Monday from a vacation at Warm Springs, Ga., and went into conference with Morgenthau, acting secretary of the Treasury, on the liquor tax question.

has tendered his resignation to become head of the Distillers Code Authority, with headquarters here.

Doran's resignation was reported effective either Monday night or Tuesday.

For some time it has been rumored that Doran would leave the government, which he has served for 26 years.

Meanwhile, importers were informed that the issuance of foreign liquor permits would be resumed Monday night. A granted Monday night. A number of number of permits have already been granted, and shipments are on the high seas bound for American shores for release after repeal becomes effective Tuesday with final ratification by Utah.

Lindbergh to Hop Southern Atlantic

Colonel and His Wife Fail to Get Off in First Two Attempts

BATHURST, Gambia, Africa—(P)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, intending to take off before night, presumably on a transatlantic flight to South America.

His wife assisted him as the flying colonel overhauled his plane during the morning following their failure to get off the water in two attempts Sunday night.

Unable to Get Off

BATHURST, Gambia, Africa—(P)—Balked by unfavorable winds in two attempts to take off, presumably for South America, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh announced last Sunday that he and his wife would start at 10:45 p. m. Sunday Central standard time.

Twice the Lindberghs were forced to return to shore today in their big monoplane, heavily laden with fuel.

Some of the surplus gasoline was removed from the tanks in preparation for another start.

A broiling hot sun thinned the air and there was no breeze.

The Lindbergh plane was a flying range of more than 2,000 miles. The air line distance, almost entirely over water from Bathurst to Natal, Brazil, is about 1,875 miles in the path of the southeastern trade winds. Along this route are two islands, Fernando de Noronha, located 125 miles from the Brazilian mainland where a penal colony is maintained, and St. Paul, about 350 miles northeast of the first island.

The steamer Westfalen, which has been tested as a floating refueling base for South Atlantic flights, will not be available to the Lindberghs unless their start is delayed beyond Monday since it is refueling at the Brazilian mainland.

Robert Huguenin's Brother Is Killed

Robert Huguenin, well known Hope citizen, received news of the death of his brother Paul Monday morning, when struck by a train at Peabody, Kas. Mr. Huguenin, 62, was the Hope man's eldest brother, and was engaged for many years as a livestock broker in the Kansas town. The Hope brother will be unable to attend the funeral, Mrs. Huguenin being ill here.

"This matter," says the letter, "is of great importance to the landowners of old road districts of this county and will affect the welfare of the taxpayers in local paving districts also. Paved continuations of state highways into Hope are vitally interested."

"It is felt that unless our tangled highway financial problems can be solved that the burden of taxes in old road districts is sure to fall back on the land, and the tax in local paving districts will be doubled by reason of loss of state aid."

X X X
The folly of Louisiana's silk-hats appealing to Washington for relief from Huey Long's political machine was made evident this last week-end when the senate investigators left New Orleans with the remark that while Louisiana election methods were "terrible" there wasn't enough evidence to unseat Senator Overton, whom Long had elected.

Thus ends another chapter in the farce of the federal government attempting to hand down superior morality and higher politics to the citizens of the individual states.

The states created the federal government—how, then, do you think the political flavor of the thing they create can be any sweeter than the politics of the people back home?

It's so impossible it's funny.

X X X
Here's a newspaper that in its own balldick would fight Senator Long to the last ditch—but, outside that, would defend him against all comers.

Senator Broussard, the New Orleans gang, and thousands of Louisiana's "best minds" and "good citizens" stand reared as a bunch of clumps.

They are part and parcel of that thing which hurts self-government everywhere—the tendency of educated men to lay down in a local election, and do their squeaking when it's all over.

When men of talent and potential leadership take politics as seriously as they take business and their private professions, then the demagogues and the kingfishes will have harder campaigns and more infrequent victories.

But I venture to say that the Broussard-Overton investigation has added ten years to the political life of Huey Long.

Louisiana Election Methods Rapped

HOUSTON, Texas — (P)—Senator Connally, chairman of the senate subcommittee investigating the Overton-Broussard election, condemned election practices in Louisiana in a statement Monday.

Inquiry Is Dropped

NEW ORLEANS—(P)—At the closing of the New Orleans hearings of the Senate committee investigating the election of Senator John H. Overton, the subcommittee indicated that it would not recommend the unseating of Senator Overton.

It was said that the committee has no intention of making any recommendations regarding Senator Huey P. Long, whose political organization supported Overton.

Chairman Tom Connally, Democrat, Texas, said that the chief function of the committee was to inquire into campaign expenditures, contributions and the use of patronage to obtain votes. The committee has indicated that it feels that little of a conclusive nature has been put into the record bearing on funds and patronage.

But the angel of the Lord said to the shepherds, Be not afraid; I bring you tidings of great joy. Unto you this day is born, in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.

2 HELD FOR STABBING

U. S. Savings & Loan Petition Filed To Solicit Stock in Federal Agency Here on Tuesday

Federal Government Will Contribute Over Half of Capital

MUST GET $2,500 After This Minimum, Subscribers May Use Part-Pay Plan

Application for permission to organize a federal savings and loan association in Hope was filed over the week-end with the Little Rock Federal Home Loan Bank.

The petition, signed by J. D. Barlow, A. D. Middlebrooks and O. A. Graves, was taken to Little Rock late Saturday by J. Curran Conway, field organizer for the Federal Home Loan Bank.

Mr. Conway will return to Hope Tuesday and launch the organization work. Business men and investors, generally, will be solicited for stock memberships by a special committee.

There are three requirements to be met before the savings and loan association can be put into operation:

1. It must have at least 30 individual subscribers.

2. It must have a total of 250 paid-in shares.

3. The initial local subscription must total at least $2,500.

Except for these three requirements, it will not be necessary for individual subscribers to pay their whole obligation at once, the purpose of the federal savings and loan association being to attract investment capital however small, and on a part-pay plan.

Mr. Conway told The Star before returning to Little Rock Saturday.

Not only does the federal government supervise this modern building and loan plan in its entirety, but the government actually advances more money than is invested locally, Mr. Conway said.

Assuming that the Hope Federal Savings & Loan Association start with $5,000 paid-up capital, he declared, the federal government will contribute another $5,000 to the capital account, and the savings and loan association will then have a credit line of $3,500 from the Federal Home Loan Bank at Little Rock—making $8,500 contributed by the federal agency, against $5,000 by local citizens.

U. S. In Partnership
Government participation, the organizer said, will continue on this basis up to a capitalization of $100,000 for a city the size of Hope.

There are 3,000 counties in the United States, and half of them are at present without building and loan facilities. It is the purpose of the Federal Home Loan Bank to sponsor federal savings and loan associations in the principal community of each of these 1,500 counties, Mr. Conway said, restricting each savings and loan unit to its home county, keeping loans on a safe and sound basis, and prohibiting competition between companies for business, which was an underlying cause of the collapse of so many building and loan concerns during the panic.

Appearing before two local civic clubs Friday, Mr. Conway declared that federal savings and loan stock offered a new attractive field for local investment capital, earning a good return, on safe collateral, and providing a means for financing construction of new residences, repair of old ones, or refinancing of present mortgages, within certain limitations.

Federal savings and loan units are a permanent new part of the national banking structure, the organizer concluded, and will occupy a field from which commercial banks have withdrawn—the handling of real estate financing.

Fulton Duellists Are Given Burial

Funeral Services for Hanan Turner and Elbert Seymour Held Sunday

Separate funeral and burial services were held Sunday for Hanan (Jack) Turner and Elbert Seymour, duellists, who shot each other to death early Saturday morning at a railroad station at Fulton.

Late rites for Turner were held at 10 o'clock at the home of his father, B. A. Turner, at Fulton. The Rev. D. N. Jackson, Baptist minister of Texarkana, officiated. Burial was in Water Creek cemetery, on the old Hope-Fulton highway.

The funeral for Seymour was held from his father's home, T. R. Seymour, at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The Rev. J. L. Williams, Presbyterian minister of Washington was in charge. Burial was in Rose Hill cemetery, Hope.

Both funerals were attended by large crowds.

The duel occurred at 1:30 o'clock Saturday morning following a dance the two men had attended. Turner was shot three times. He died in Julia Chester hospital two hours later. Seymour was shot once by Turner. He died a few minutes later.

Neighbors said the tragedy climaxed an old grudge between the two men that dated back 12 years ago.

Dr. J. H. Weaver, county coroner, held that no inquest was necessary. Finding of squirrel shot in Seymour's body held by the arrest of Turner's father, B. A. Turner, on a warrant charging him with accessory to murder. Turner is to be given a hearing in Hope municipal court at 9 Wednesday morning.

BULLETIN
FORT SMITH, Ark.—(P)—Raymond Drake, deputy sheriff from Sallisaw, Okla., said late Monday that the man in a hospital here believed to be Pretty Boy Floyd was "an exact double," but he could not identify him as the notorious outlaw. Police guards were then withdrawn from the hospital.

FORT SMITH, Ark.—(P)—Two women, identified by Constable Jack Pace and Deputy Constable Otto Kuykendall as the wife and cousin of Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, notorious desperado, and a man believed by officers to be Floyd, were under a heavy guard in a hospital here Monday following an automobile accident in which the three were injured and another man, Fred Stiles, Fort Smith, was killed.

The crash occurred near Charleston, Ark., late Sunday night.

Officers said the women were Mrs. Ruby Floyd and Stella Collins, both of whom lived here for some time.

The man believed by officers to be Floyd gave the name of Bob Carney, Fort Smith; but officers said, although they are not positive in the identification, the man resembles Floyd.

He suffered a broken leg in the crash, and the women were cut and bruised.

Officers from Sallisaw, Okla., Floyd's home, were on their way here Monday afternoon with fingerprints.

Carlton Young and Hugh Moss, both of McNab, have been arrested in connection with the stabbing of Garland Palmer at Fulton late Friday night, it was learned here Monday.

Mr. Palmer, although weak from loss of blood, is believed to be on the road to recovery, it was said by the physician who attended him.

Young has been identified by Mr. Palmer as his assailant who wielded a knife which penetrated three inches into Palmer's back, stopping just over the left kidney. The blood-stained knife was found where the fight occurred, the blade stuck in the ground.

Moss was identified as the person who engaged in a fight with Palmer when the latter resented remarks by Moss which were made in the presence of Mrs. Palmer, according to officers.

The stabbing took place at Palmer and Moss fought. Moss was arrested late Friday night in a cafe at Fulton when pointed out by Palmer after the fight. Young was taken in custody later by Deputy Sheriff J. C. Pate of Fulton.

Both Moss and Young were released under bond. A hearing is expected to be held this week.

YOUR CHILDREN

"Where are you going, Scott?" "Bob whistled, 'I'll be back in a minute.'"

"You can't go," said Scott's daddy. "It's dark and cold. You sit down and get your lessons."

"Oh, Dave, don't be ordering him about that way. He'll only be a minute, won't you?"

"Sure. He just wants me for something. I'll be right back."

"You're not going!"

"Mother says I can. Can't I Mom?"

"Just a twenty minute minute?"

"Do let him, Dave. Don't be such a bear."

David picked up his paper and did not answer, but when the door had slammed he remarked, "That's the way you are. He gets croup and then you're all in next day. All right—if he's sick tonight don't call me. I'm tired."

Mother's Anxiety

Scott did not come back so out went his mother. He was over in Bob's yard helping his friend to hunt his lost knife with a flashlight.

"Scotty, come right home this minute. What do you mean by staying out so long?"

"All right, I'm comin'. But you said I could come and help. Yes, you did, too. All right, all right! G'night, Bob!"

His mother listened to his breathing all the rest of the evening with anxious ear. If he got wheezing she knew she was in for it, not only nursing but her husband's "I told you so's."

But he was all right. Nothing happened and all was well.

The next night it was sleeping. "Boy," said his father, "Go down to the drug store and get me a pack of cigarettes."

"On a night like this, of all things!" exclaimed his wife. "You must be crazy. The weather's terrible."

"He goes to school in it, doesn't he? He'll only be gone a few minutes. You let him go out last night."

Scotty looked at his mother and laughed.

"You see," she cried. "He'll be sick all night. Here, give me the money and I'll go myself. For answer he got up, put on his own hat and coat and left."

A whistle outside. Scott flew to the door. "Say, it's great out here," called Bob. "It's like show. Let's slide a minute."

The street was dry and the street was white.

"Mom, can't I go just a minute. I'll put on my coat. Just one side? Two?"

He held up a finger, two fingers, five fingers.

"Very well, but hurry up. Your father will murder me, if he sees you."

He slid ten minutes and she called him in. When his dad got back his son was studying innocently.

Mother and son picked at each other from time to time enjoying their little secret. A conspiracy against the old bear.

"Not so good, I think. Just another brick added to the wall those two were rearing between themselves and the boy's other parent. Just a little one but little things count. And yet if the man had suspected perhaps he too would have been more consistent in authority."

When you get in bed, lie flat on your back, without a pillow, with your arms at your sides. Breathe deeply but do not count your breath or be conscious of it. If worries of the day persist in coming into your mind, think of yards and yards of black velvet or some other soft, rich but dark fabric. You'll find that relaxation will come sooner that way. Counting sheep makes your mind work—and that's exactly what you don't want.

The woman who works very hard or has many things on her mind should try to get a few minutes complete relaxation in the middle of the day. A two hour nap isn't necessary but twenty or thirty minutes will do wonders for her nerves. The thing to do, of course, is to select a quiet, lonely spot and go there alone. Don't try to talk or think. Simply eat a light, well balanced meal and then lie down somewhere for a little while. If it's impossible to stretch out on a bed, try and find a comfortable chair in a secluded corner and relax on it. Close your eyes and think of the black velvet. You'll be surprised how much easier the afternoon's work will be.

"What'll You Have?"

LEGAL LIQUOR

GOVERNMENT REVENUE

It Pays to Be Legal

BY BRUCE CATTON

The coming of repeal ends a number of old problems and creates a number of new ones; but on no one does it place a greater responsibility than on the average, every-day citizen who likes his occasional highball, cocktail or glass of wine.

There is no question whatever that it was public resentment over the activities of the bootlegger and his allies that was chiefly responsible for the voting of repeal.

There were other factors, of course. But the citizenry as a whole made up its mind that a law which subsidized such an insolent and lawless criminal class was a law that did not belong on the books any longer; and for that reason, more than for any other, prohibition was voted out.

So what? So now we approach a new era, in which it will be possible to put the bootlegger out of business. But if this desirable end is to be gained, most of the work will have to be done by the average citizen mentioned above.

He can do it very simply. All he has to do is make no purchases of liquor which are not legal.

Not all of the liquor control laws now being adopted are as liberal as some would like. In many places it will still be as legal to "walk in and buy a drink" after December 5 as it was before. In many states the tax program will make legal liquor slightly more expensive than the illegal kind.

Furthermore, it is an open secret that the bootlegger is not going to quit cold. He will hang on if he gets half a chance.

The bootlegger will bet the chance if the average citizen concludes that it is cheaper and simpler to buy from the speakeasy than from the legal source of supply. But if the average citizen does come to that conclusion he will be kidding himself very badly.

Simpler—when each purchase helps to perpetuate that frightfully tangled and complex crime problem which strikes at the very heart of municipal government?

Cheaper—when each dollar spent on bootleg booze goes to pay the hired killers, the fixers, the crooked politicians and the assorted henchmen whom the illegal liquor traffic supports?

By buying your liquor legally you strike a body blow at the bootlegger. Instead of contributing to the upkeep of the underworld, you contribute, through taxes, to the support of your own government. It is estimated that you and your fellow citizens are going to contribute in that way to the tune of several hundred million dollars a year.

If we need a new slogan to carry into the repeal era, we might try this: It pays to be legal.

Scanning New Books

You are not apt to find any funnier book this fall than "My Life and Hard Times," by James Thurber.

This book, I suppose, is an autobiography—but what an autobiography! Told with a perfectly straight face, it includes some of the most thoroughly insane anecdotes and reminiscences anybody ever heard.

There was the time, for instance, when the residents of Columbus, O., thought that a dam had burst and loosed flood waters on their city. Everybody started running— young and old, healthy and infirm; male and female—and what Mr. Thurber does with this frantic heira is nothing less than sidesplitting.

Then there was the time when the Thurber family heard footsteps downstairs at night, suspected burglars, and called the cops; then grandfather, the old Civil War veteran who slept in the attic, got the idea that the cops were deserters from McCallan's army trying to hide under his bed, and managed to shoot one before he could be set straight on things.

Grandfather, in fact, is a swell character, who almost steals the whole show. He helps make "My Life and

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

Use an Aluminum Pan to Cook All Your Christmas Candies

By SISTER MARY
NEA Service Staff Writer

As Christmas nears it's time to think about making Christmas candies. Particularly fondant which is better for a period of ripening. There are many other candies, too, to be made for Christmas boxes, delightful gifts from our own kitchens.

There are certain precautions to keep in mind when making candy of any variety and perhaps a brief list of them will be helpful.

First, always have all the ingredients and utensils at hand and ready before beginning to cook the sugar.

Second, do not let candy boil until the sugar is thoroughly dissolved.

Tomorrow's Menu

Luncheon: Cream of potato soup, olive and nut sandwiches, prune pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner: Pot roast of beef with browned vegetables, tomato jelly salad, molasses pudding, milk, coffee.

Fondant

The cups granulated sugar, 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar, few grains salt, 2 1/2 cup boiling water.

Mix and sift sugar, cream of tartar and salt into a smooth sauce pan. Add water and stir until sugar is melted, but over a low fire and bring slowly to the boiling point. Place a pan of cold water close to the pan of cooking syrup and wipe off crystals as they form. Cover pan and let boil two minutes. Remove cover and swab off crystals. Boil uncovered until a soft ball is formed when a few drops are tested in a saucer of cold water. The candy thermometer should register 238 degrees F. When syrup is cooked enough, immediately put the pan in to a large pan of cold water and let stand undisturbed until cool. Beat with a wooden spoon until creamy. When to stiff to stir turn onto a large platter or marble slab and knead until soft. Put into a bowl brushed with olive oil, cover with a dampened cloth and then cover the bowl tightly and let stand several days before using. Flavor when ready to form into shapes.

Butter Creams

One cup fondant, 4 tablespoons butter, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Work butter into fondant. Add vanilla and beat until thoroughly mixed. Put into a bowl, cover closely and let stand in a cold place until chilled and firm. Form into marbles and dip in chocolate.

Peppermint Wafers

One cup fondant, 2 or 3 drops oil of peppermint.

Make fondant into a flat cake and drop peppermint into the center. Work with a wooden spatula or the fingers until smooth and thoroughly mixed. Make into flat shapes about the size of a half-dollar and coat with bitter chocolate.

Nut and Fruit Ball

Two cups fondant, 1 cup broken nut meats, 1/2 cup sliced candied cherries, 1/2 cup sliced candied pineapple, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Work fruit and nuts into fondant. Add vanilla and form into a roll about 1 1/2 inch in diameter. Cover with oiled paper and let stand in a cold place until firm. Cut in slices and dip in chocolate or use plain as preferred.

Nuts can be wrapped in fondant and then dipped in chocolate.

Preserved cherries can be drained from their syrup, wrapped in fondant and then dipped in a mixture of sweet and bitter chocolate.

Crushed pineapple can be drained from its juice and mixed with fondant and the mixture shaped in small marbles and dipped.

Dates are a delicious confection stuffed with vanilla flavored fondant.

Small patties of fondant are topped with an unbroken half of a pecan or English walnut. A blanched almond, half of a candied cherry, a thin slice of candied pineapple or even a cube of bright jelly can be used to give variety to a box of Christmas candies.

Two Unnamed

This is a little song dedicated to two football players who do not stand a great chance of being named All-America this year. . . . I don't know why they're not named either. . . . but in the opinions of coaches I have consulted they won't.

They are Mike Sebastian of Pitt and Ralph Gercheval of Kentucky. . . . The Sebastian who weaved, bobbed, hand-sprung and catapulted through a frantically grabbing Notre Dame team last year. . . . 45 yards of the wildest, most eccentric dancing these eyes have seen after searching many a gridiron.

Turning Point

And that game by the way, one of the greatest upsets in years, seemed to be the turning point for the worse for Notre Dame. . . . after that the South Besders, who had come in at odds of 7 to 1, never hit their old-time stride. . . . which just shows you what one guy's sudden mad dash can do to a football team.

Again this year, against Nebraska, he was like a torrent continually withering against a levee of well-filled combusker jerseys. . . . they gave him that leather to lug again and again. . . . and when it was all added up, he had a four-year average to his credit. . . . fifteen times carrying the ball.

Kercheval Stands Up, Too

Kercheval. . . for the fine losing struggle he waged against Duke this year. . . . with its All-America tackle, Freddy Crawford, standing in front of the line with great arms outstretched. . . . before the game, the talk went around that the Blue Devils were to pitch their power against Kercheval whenever possible. . . . and that after he got off one of those marvelous kicks, he might be found lying cold and limp with the Blue Grass for his pillow.

Kercheval heard it. . . . he knew what it was all about. . . . and he answered the challenge by one of the greatest exhibitions of football in his splendid career.

When the game ended there stood Kercheval. . . . with a record of having excelled himself not only at running, passing, receiving and kicking. . . . but with a perfect quarterbacking score. They said in the stands after the game that he had not called one signal wrong. . . . under the stress of a threat he had out-thought and out-played them all.

BARBS

Counten, China, has banned short skirts because they distract auto drivers. Not to mention the drivers' interest in what is in the skirts.

The white ant produces 84,000 eggs a day, says science. Still it doesn't worry about an NRA code, at all.

Frank J. Gould's $5,000,000 gambling casino at Nice has been burned down. Many a loser will kick himself for not having thought of that first before committing suicide.

Al Smith calls it the "baloney dollar," and he's opposed to slicing it any further.

General Johnson says Ford has complied with the NRA code. So the whole argument has turned out to be a flivver.

Dr. Fishbein Gives Three Reasons Why People Wear Clothes

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

You wear clothes for three particular reasons.

First, to satisfy our views regarding modesty. Second, as protection against the elements. Third, to attract the opposite sex.

In warm countries, people are not concerned with the wearing of clothes for protection to the skin. The weather is not likely to affect them one during the rainy season. They accustom themselves soon to the sun and rain and they even may overcome the annoyance of being bitten by insects.

However, those who live in the temperate or cold regions of the world find it necessary to wear some covering for the skin, since they are not capable of withstanding extreme cold.

The noted London physiologist, Prof. Leonard Hill, points out that the civilized man when naked and quiet, finds water at a temperature of 55 to 98 degrees Fahrenheit not unbearably warm, and temperature of 76 to 86 as pleasant.

However, when the temperature in the room is 50, it seems cold, and 40 to 50 degrees is very cold. There are a few people, indeed, who can stand exposure to freezing temperatures on the naked skin.

While you are at work at a desk or in a shop, you expose about 20 per cent of your body surface to the air. The rest of the body is covered with clothing and the temperature under this clothing usually is about 95 degrees.

It long has been recognized that you can accustom yourself to colder temperature by exposing gradually more and more of your body to the cold weather.

For some time there was a fad of having children go with their legs bared during the cold weather, with the idea that this would accustom them to the cold and make it much harder for them to catch colds. Many a child suffered acute discomfort, with his knees rattling like castanets while he walked beside a mother clothed in a woolen skirt and covered with furs.

A child ought to wear enough covering at all times. This does not mean that the child is to be overclothed, which will interfere with the condition of its skin and subject it to a sudden change of temperature when the clothing is removed.

It does mean, however, that insufficient clothing of the child leads to overexposure and overexposure is associated with illness.

Sharp changes in temperature are alleged to be responsible primarily for lowering of resistance and latching of cold. Unfortunately, the majority of men dress rather heavily and are fairly comfortable outdoors, whereas women are likely to cover their somewhat scanty garments with heavy coats and furs.

However, when they come indoors, the women find the amount of covering insufficient and demand high temperatures in the room, while the men suffer because of the excess clothing they wear in a temperature satisfactory to women workers.
